special considerations and pitfalls.

Why do people want a chart for their baby? What are the real motives? And for us, astrologers, we must be very careful when it is a newborn child, as parents cannot yet see if you are right or wrong. What can you tell the parent and what not? How about ethics? And how about the psyche of the astrologer?

In this webinar I will take you on both a philosophical and psychological journey, ask many confronting questions, and share with you my experiences in dealing with the charts of children. It won't be a course in delineation, but thoughts about how we can approach something as delicate as the chart of a young child.

Interpreting the chart of a child asks from both parents and astrologer a confrontation with own fears, anxieties, wishes, issues, youth problems and much more. It is a sobering exercise, but very worthwhile. In helping yourself you will help the child.
